GLACIER PARK TALK

WAS WELL RECEIVED

High School Students Are Given Rare Treat Yesterday Afternoon by Noted Lecturer.

For over an hour yesterday afternoon at the close of the classes Laurence D. Kitchell, noted lecturer, accompanied by slides and moving pictures, spoke to the student body of the high school in the assembly room on Glacier National Park, one of the newest features of mountain scenery and pleasure resorts in America.
Where the most beautiful spots are in the park, Mr. Kitchell had with him one of the most interesting subjects of the talk, and is about the grandest spot in the park itself. Three slides were shown of this lake, which is entirely surrounded by mountains.
The first scene pictured the lake
when the sun was rising. The second displayed the grandness of the scene
when the sun was gradually setting,
and the last was a moonlight picture
of the body of water.
Along with the talk the speaker introduced the Blackfoot Indians, who live within the borders of the park.
The address was heartily received and the speaker was given a loud applause
as he closed his description.

ORLANDO COGSWELL DIED ON SATURDAY

Pioneer of Rock County for Fifty Years, Passes Away at Home in Whitewater—Was 80
Years of Age.
Orlando Cogswell, aged eighty years, and for fifty years a pioneer of Rock county, passed away at his home in Whitewater, Saturday morning last.
Mr. Cogswell was born at Mount Rose, Pennsylvania, in 1834. He came to the Badger state in 1844 and made Rock Prairie his home until 1854, when he moved to this city. While in Janesville, he worked in the employ of a coal and iron mine, who were owners of a very stable at that time.
In the spring of 1850 he went to California by the way of the Isthmus of Panama. He was three weeks on the water, one week on the Atlantic and two on the Pacific. After an absence of eight years, which time he spent in California, he returned to Wisconsin and settled in Rock county,

where he had since resided.
Between the years 1883 to 1891, Mr.
Cogswell drove a stage, carrying mail and passengers from Richmond to Janesville, and returned during the eight years he missed but one trip, a mishap of snow being the cause for that one omission, and he covered a distance of 62,499 miles during the eight years.
He had been in good health up to the time of his death. During the past few years he moved to Whitewater, but was a resident of Lima a number of years previous to that time.
He leaves three children to mourn his loss. They are: Mrs. Lola Cummings, wife of Mr. C. W. Cummings,

Thom was born in Wisbur, Pomer-ania, Germany, October 3, 1842. In 1871 he married Miss Johanna Ben-nert, and in 1882 they left Germany to make their home in Janesville.
The deceased was a resident of this city for many years, and a member of St. Paul's Lutheran church until his death.

Amusements

HOW UNCLE SAM BUILT
THE PANAMA CANAL

"You may miss a great many things in the show line in the course of a season, but, as friend to friend, don't miss Howe's new program reproducing how Uncle Sam accomplished that $400,000,000 job with a panama." It is what a dramatic critic of national reputation says of the reproduction which Mr. Howe will present at the Myers Theater two days and three nights, beginning Monday, 11.
The picture is a reproduction of the film is replete with sensational and wonderful scenes of the most tremendous projects ever undertaken by the human race. It is the only reproduction that does justice to the magnitude of the task, and when it is considered that this is the only time Mr. Howe will present it here, the importance of the engagement cannot be over-estimated. It depicts the bridges raising huge quantities of earth and rock with unprecedented machinery. It shows a Culebra cut the army of workers appearing almost like ants in size—and likewise as busy—while all around them are canal shafts digging deeper and deeper. The huge machinery devised by American inventive skill appears to be endowed with volition all its own. Concrete locks are seen passing swiftly along with great speed and its characteristically American. Suddenly there is a spectacular eruption.
Tons of dynamite blow up another lock. Col. Goethals' fireworks" they called it. The film goes on everything it is brilliant with American energy and enterprise and teeming with life and activity. Truly it is a reproduction as wondrous in its way as the canal itself and one which easily ranks first as the only picture and enduring record of the greatest achievement in all ages. As such it is a powerful object lesson for the world, a large of what we Americans can achieve and do with our own hands, which every American, and American, should not miss seeing.
Yellowstone Park—that vast arena created by nature in the heart of the Rock Mountains—where numerous keyholes are the contents of glaciers
—is another big feature to be presented. The film shows strange forces of nature more furiously active anywhere else on earth. The scenery is of such a volcanic nature that he brand of fire which is everywhere, and as such they convey the real "atmosphere" of a region where fire and water have struggled for supremacy for countless centuries. Climb the rugged and instantly to a ride through the mountains and over the St. Gothard mountains between Italy and Switzerland and glacier spectators past magnificent mountain scenery and giant peaks,
through rugged crags and to quiet Swiss villages. Again the scenes change—this time to the Paris Zoo showing a splendid collection of animals in a clean range, some of them
very little known, such as the bear or South American ostrich, the jaca, the African mouflon and the zebra-like Tamand. Then come living scenes in British Columbia and equally riveting views of tony fishing near Palermo, a range
through the ruins of Pompeii, reproduced in nature's own colors, imparting vivid impressions of the havoc caused by the historic earthquake centuries ago. Wood turning and delectable clocks at Saint Claude; Naples, symphonies of the sea, and a ride through the Montana Canyon and over the Cascade Mountains in Oregon on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul's
"Olympian" are only a few of the many other features.

"Peg O' My Heart," the comedy of youth by J. H. Manners in which Laurette Taylor has charmed show York steadily for over a year, at the Cort theater, comes to the Myers theater Thursday, March 19. Florence Martin, the beautiful actress, has been chosen to play the role of Peg,
the Irish madcap, one of the most fascinating dramatic creations of modern times.
Peg comes out of America and falls
in love with a young man of an English family of aristocratic relatives with strict traditions. She walks into the library with her shabby traveling bag in her hand and a shabby though rough dog under her arm.
"I was told to wait," is her only explanation of her presence. It seems she was willed on the Chichesters by a relative just dead. She is the daughter of a runaway sister of the family who married beneath her station and went off to America. Peg has had no advantages, except poverty, which lets her see something of life. Her Irish father, whom she describes as the best man in the world, gave her a quality brogue and her looks, which are quite out of the ordinary.
The light and shadow of contrast between the convention petrified the Chichesters and natural Peg forms
the basis for the humorous situations in the play. Peg falls in love with Gerald, a young executor of the will which has provided for Peg, whom she gets to know under the name of Jerry. She makes him take her to a dance which she is forbidden to attend, and afterward stops her cousin from running away with a married man with whom she is infatuated.
Finally it is disclosed the reason why the family does not take to her and surround her with all sorts of restrictions is that they are being paid one thousand pounds a year for receiving her. Their bank has failed and they are thus forced to accept this money though they would rather not do so.
Peg rebels against the treatment to which she is forced to submit and is only forced from going back to America—and her father—by her love affair with Jerry, which ends happily.

The production is a fine one and the cast includes Isabel Vernon, Colin Campbell, Maude Allen, Fred L. Tilden, Nella Horan, Pell Trenton, Reginald Carrington, John Lyons and others.

VAUDEVILLE.
Classic dances and physical culture posing form the principal features of the act billed at "The Gladiator" and the Nymphs, which is headlined in the bill at the Myers Theater tonight.
It is an exchange that is seldom that more exquisite dancing has been seen than is offered by the young woman in this act. The decision of a dance similar to that of the "Spring Song" is truly beautiful and poetic,
but it is no finer than her toe dancing
a little later in the act. Her work throughout is dainty and graceful, expresses the symbolism of the dances in an extremely satisfactory manner. If you admire muscle you should see the young woman's partner. His posings are a revelation. Glad in a leopard skin with his legs and neck bare he exhibits his great development in the spotlight's glare. He is finely proportioned and is graceful and agile. The act carries splendid scenery and is high class.

Catalana Bros. offer a pleasing musical act. One member of the duo plays the accordion in masterly style and produces much harmony. The other appears in songs, which are clever, and good music played last night. Both young men are artists in their line.

Georgalis and Brother, fancy shots,
amaze and thrill all by their marvelous work. Using rifles and revovers they do some almost unbelievable shooting, hitting targets from every angle.
Anna Woodward Backenstol, high
class singing act.

Breathe Through The Nose

Nose breathing is essential to good health. Drawing the air through the nose warms it, strains out the dust and presents it to the lungs in a fit state, guarding the lungs against chilling and the bad effects of dirt. The lungs need plenty of fresh air every day, to properly oxidize the blood. Plenty of oxygen in the blood burns out the dross and renders it ready for excretion. Then with the proper laxative health can be easily maintained.

Tonic-Laxative

Next to fresh air is the importance of regular bowels. In all cases of sluggish bowels a tonic laxative should be used. To combine tonic qualities with a laxative is the latest achievement in medical science. Laxatives naturally depress. The tonic element removes that objection. Peruna should be in every household because it fulfills every quality to make it an effective tonic laxative.
Many people who have used Peruna are able to say truthfully, "I am now enjoying perfect health."

HOLD SERVICES FOR GUSTAVUS HILTON

Was Early Pioneer of State, Building
One of First Frame Houses in Green County.
Funeral services for Gustavus Hilton, were held yesterday afternoon at two o'clock at the United Brethren church, the Rev. C. J.
Roberts officiating. Four sons, Elroy, B. Marcelus E. Herbert W., and Lorrin L. served as pallbearers who tenderly performed the last service.
All members of the family were present at the services except Mrs. William Bailey, of South Dakota and Mrs. L. L. Garrett of Iowa, two of his daughters. Besides survived by twenty grand-children
and five great-grandchildren.
Mr. Hilton was an early pioneer,
born in the state of Maine, January 17th, 1828 and came to Wisconsin in 1851 when Whitewater was the terminal of the C. M. & St. P. Ry. He settled upon government land in the northern part of Green county, where he erected one of the first frame houses in that county, drawing the wagon from Janesville, the where he marketed his produce. February 10th, 1858, he married Sarah M.

Presher. Mr. Hilton was a grandson of Major Lemuel Williams, one of General Washington's staff officers at Valley Forge, and a son of John Hilton, a veteran of the War of 1812.
He together with his mother, who died at the advanced age of nearly 93 years, have lived under the administration of every president of the United States. He was a man of sterling quality and unquestionable
integrity and his passing will be sorely felt by all who knew him.

Domestic Animals and Poison.
Some of the domestic animals are far less sensitive than human beings to poisons of certain kinds. On the other hand they show less resisting power than men in other poisons of a different nature.

The column lady fighter of the world lives in Paris. Her name is Marthe Carpentier and she has announced a challenge to all comers—females only, of course. Mlle. Carpentier is no kith or kin to the French heavy champ of that name and has been trained by M. Albany, a fighting expert of Paris. "Of course," declares Mlle. Carpentier, "there is the possibility that a woman's beauty will be somewhat marred (Mlle. Carpentier is quite good looking)—but if for any other reason why women should not box, it's the delightful exercise and I enjoy it immensely." Mlle. Carpentier has as yet had no very hard battles.

The Cardinals find that their friend the jinx, is on the job early this season. At the close of last season Miller Huggins offered the Cardinal jinx for sale at a tempting figure, but no one seemed to want to buy. He's back again this year with both feet and Manager Huggins is cursing. Hauser's breakdown, Suggs' jump to the Reds and lots of rain the first week of the training season are a few of the tricks of the jinx thus far this year. Huggins declares that he is getting desperate. He had hoped that this season for the first time since he has managed the Cardinals he might get an even break of luck. But the early appearance of the jinx has discouraged him and he is despairing.

The new and nutty dances have done a little good anyway. They have cured Willie Ritchie's injured heel, or at least so the champ declares, and if he hadn't been able to do a hesitation or an Argentine glide a few hours every day he would still be limping around. Willie declares that he tried every sort of doc. they had in Frisco, all to no avail. And then a friend came along and interested him in the new dances and it did the work. Now instead of doing road work he takes four or five miles a day and he gets a lot of additional enjoyment and fashionable recreation. Willie says he recommends tangoing as a training stunt to all ambitious fighters.

Pop Anson's boom for president of the Cubs is growing nicely. The old tip is mighty popular in Chicago and it did the work. ## HIGHS MUST DEFEAT WAUWATOSA TEAM IN ELIMINATION GAME

Report From Appleton Gives Janesville Team a Boost, With But One School Five In the Way.

The Janesville high school basketball champions are not going to play Elkhoru or Wauwatosa now for elimination to the state tourney, held in Appleton the 26th, 27th and 28th of this month. This report was received at this office, and by Coach Curtis of the high school. Through their big victory over Wauwatosa at the Beloit tourney by a 38 to 17 score, the Janesville champs are left only to play Wauwatosa in an elimination game. Wauwatosa and Wauwatosa are considered to be on par, each team holding a victory over the other.

The idea was that Janesville, after being defeated by Elkhoru, would have to play an elimination game with the Elkhoru again, but Coach Curtis figures it out this way. Edgerton have twice trimmed Elkhoru, and Janesville in turn have given Edgerton two victories. This does give the Bower City title holders the edge, say the officials. Lawrence College authorities further say, "Inasmuch as Janesville won the Beloit tournament and completely outclassed some of the teams who were to play elimination games with the Lawrence authorities have decided that Janesville would only have to play Wauwatosa, a team that was not entered in the southern meet. Last year's state champions, Janesville, are believed to be the superior of Wauwatosa, however."

E. G. Schroeder of Iowa University has been engaged to officiate again this year. During the past two years he has refereed the tourneys at Appleton, not one kick has been made against him.

Curtis will arrange with Wauwatosa at once, as to the date and in what floor the game will be played on.

SHOP FORCE PUT TEAM FROM OFFICE TO MAT IN BOWLING CONTEST

Taking the first and last falls the shop force of the Parker Pen company plumed the corner of the office five to the mat by 216 points in their weekly bowling match held last night at Miller's. The shop five got a strange hold in the first round by bowling 780 and started to choke a victory from the losers. In the second fall the office bunch tripped up their opponents and after a close tussle had them licked by five points. In the final and deciding session the shop force put across a toe hold and flopped the office aggregation for final honors. Arnold was high man with 179 but in the next game slumped to a 91 score winning the booby prize also.

ENGLAND'S ATTITUDE.

If any casual reader thinks that England is lightly viewing the Mexican situation and the death of one of its subjects without any attempt at redress by the United States they are doomed to see their mistake pointed out to them in no uncertain manner. The Christian Science Monitor says: "When London goes mauling there is nothing particularly serious in the civic mind. The exuberance of the curbstone is merely the high spirits of a few students in their spare hours. When London says nothing and the headlines in the papers become more than usually congested it may be taken for granted that the British government has taken to thinking. Sir Edward Grey put this fact succinctly in his recent statement to the House of Commons. The quietness, he explained, with which the country had heard of the Benton affair must not be regarded as a proof of its indifference. On the contrary it must be taken as a sign that it was seriously concerned. That the country is seriously concerned its memory becomes prodigious."

If General Villa and his associates imagine, therefore, that it is the weather of the present storm the United Kingdom will, after a time, forget, they are making the greatest possible mistake. It will be one and the same thing in the eyes of the United Kingdom, so far as General Villa is concerned, whether General Huerta succeeds or fails. King George's government has never asked President Wilson to become responsible for the punishment of Mr. Benton's assassins, but it has quite made up its mind that if the cabinet in Washington does not, when the opportunity offers, undertake their punishment itself, that punishment will not be less condoned because its infliction is reserved for Downing street. There is not the slightest inclination in any single quarter to blame the United States in any way for General Villa's morals, but there is a distinct feeling that the policy of the president has enabled General Villa to give expression to those morals in a particular act which is punishable in a particular way.

From the very beginning of the struggle, the United Kingdom has trusted the Washington government without reservation. It had naturally no wish to interfere in any way in the struggle. Some centuries' experience of bush fighting and guerrilla warfare have not produced in British ministers an inordinate desire to take an unnecessary hand in such matters. The interests of the country in Mexico are, however, very considerable, and if the United States demands that other nations shall promulgate a self-denying ordinance, that demand carries with it the moral obligation to see that their interests and subjects do not suffer for their compliance with the quite natural demand of the president in this respect.

The British government does not wish even to hurry the government in Washington in working out a particularly difficult problem. What, however, they are quite failing to understand, is how the problem is to be worked out by giving the culprit the assistance necessary for him to maintain the position he has taken up. The President of the United States made a particularly plain declaration of policy with respect to the fate of Senor Madero. What the precise moral difference in the fate of Madero and the fate of Benton may be, people are being driven to calculate in terms of political expediency.

THE G. O. P. FUTURE.

There seems but little doubt that the two elements of the republican party are gradually getting together on some mutual ground. Each side is giving in the old line republican leaders being willing to concede many points for the sake of harmony. An exchange in discussing the situation says:

There has never been in American political history a situation quite like that of the present in party standing, hopes and calculations. Probably the nearest to a counterpart was supplied when the Whig party, in a sudden disintegration resulting from long trifling with a great issue, was replaced by the republican after a passing period of democratic control of the government secured by the division of its opponents. The Whig party, however, had hardly time to call up on the men who were deserting it to return before it was apparent that it was useless. There was no halting in the decline, no moment of seeming return of strength, no indication that the party of Webster and Clay had an unperformed task that it must do and no other could. The republican contention now is that it was broken in two by a protest suddenly made in a single election, largely the result of the leadership of one of the master politicians of history; that it is the custodian of principles that are not discarded by the men who went out and that are still essential; and that return of the voters who were disaffected is to be only less swift than their departure. Stray evidences supplied by special elections to Congress and local tests support the claim that is a party with a future.

The topic cannot be dropped without the observation that three-party division has never been long tolerated in American politics. Its product is minority control. The maneuvers of party managers are not likely for long to hold the people from that alignment which will make a government representative of their larger number. The assurance of that political law has its value in spurring the active politicians to give the liveliest evidence that theirs is the rallying point of a real majority. Formal invitation will not be needed when that fact is made obvious by conduct and candidates.

Wisconsin is even more unfortunate than other states owing to the internal split in the ranks of the men who call themselves republicans, exclusive of the ultra progressive Roosevelt men. However they may get together in time.

HERE IS A PROBLEM.

So much has been said and written on the tax problem that confronts the Wisconsin voters that the following from the Madison Democrat is most interesting to be kept in mind just at this time:

David O'Connor has a farm in Grant county, but David resides in Milwaukee and rents it. Last year his total income was $135 while the taxes were $143.34. In 1903, ten years ago, the taxes were only $21.17, while in 1912 they were but $74.85. Nearly a 600 per cent jump in a single decade sorely agitates David and he has written Grant county officials a peppy letter, saying that he thinks the county has "become about as progressive as the people can afford." That is true, and, indeed, the population of the county actually is decreasing. David expresses pleasure to realize that 1913 only comes once in a lifetime. But just let him wait in patience for another year! The worst is by no means over.

It is strange how after every disaster by fire or accident, so many officials whose duty it is to supervise the protection of human life, make statements the building was not safe or the management had been warned. Publicity before the disaster would save many lives and lots of suffering.

Even the opposition democratic administration papers are making much capital out of the fact that even at the time of a crisis in the Wilson administration, Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan was away from Washington delivering Chautauqua lectures.

The state fair board is still having hard work with the Milwaukee county board relative to that Fleming tract which adjoins it. The opposition to the purchase are most industrious and will probably win out in the end.

Janesville mid-winter fair is going to be some show. It will be something to brag of when other exhibits are talked of in the future just as the Janesville fair next summer will open the eyes of the most pessimistic.

Primary day is but two weeks off and the candidates for the various city offices are most busy in their campaigns. The outcome will be watched with interest owing to the large field of candidates in the race.

Thus far the democrats have not found any one to run against Judge Karel of Milwaukee for the nomination for governor, so it looks as though he had the field himself.

Congressman Cooper is a busy man down in Washington these days. As a member of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs the Mexican trouble is keeping them hard at work to meet any emergency.

It now appears that friends of the murdered American, whose body was rescued from its grave in Mexico, obtained the remains and that the Texas Rangers did not invade the soil of the sister republic after all.

Senator Fall of New Mexico would involve the United States in a war at once, regardless of any consequences. This is all right in theory but in practice is very bad policy.

Governor McGovern is having hard work these days making any sort of a satisfactory arrangement with himself as to what the present political situation will develop into.

Still Mr. Aylward and Mr. Davies hand out those federal jobs regardless of the protest of any of the old line democrats who object to being ignored.

THE OVANDO FOUR AT THE APOLLO. Playing an instrument that is the wonder of the musical world, a full orchestra in one instrument.

It is about time for the spring freshets to take procedure of all other news, even the Mexican war scare. Let us hope they will not be as serious as in 1913.

There are a lot of men and women in this country who are still wondering what is the real cause belli of the Mexican trouble after all.

Winter is having a hard time to let go his grip. However let us hope that all bonds will be severed within a short time.

That snow shovel may be a handy article yet. Beware the Ides of March.

TOWN AND VILLAGE CLERKS WILL HEAR EXPLANATION OF TOWNSHIP PRIMARY LAW

Prominent among the matters which will be given consideration at the meeting of the town and village clerks at the office of the county clerk Thursday afternoon will be the new township primary law concerning which there has been some misunderstanding. A representative from the attorney general's or the tax commissioner's office will be present to go over the law, explaining the details and answering any questions which may be asked. Other topics which will be discussed include the preparation of the clerks' reports to the county clerk and changes in the state laws which effect the duties of the clerks.

"An American King"

This two-part Edison comedy-drama has been well described as "one of the most delightful stories ever told." John North, a prosperous young American business man, and grandson of a banished ruler of Balkia, would marry Helen Bond, but her mother has visions of getting a title for her daughter, so his hopes are dwindling. What happened on a trip to Europe, the vacant throne in Balkia, the finding of the only descendant of the royal line, the coronation and the effect of American business methods in Balkia's rule, and the final discomfiture of the mother-in-law-to-be, are parts of a story wholly delightful.

"Lincoln the Lover"

Ralph Ince of the Vitaphone players here gives us his fine characterization of Lincoln. The picture opens with the President receiving the applause of a great crowd whom he has addressed; this is fame. He leaves them, and seeks, alone, the flickering glow of his fireplace. There the emptiness of it all comes before him, and he dreams of what might have been—of Ann Rutledge and of his great sorrow. You see it all as it passes in his mind, the youthful hopes blasted with bitter sorrow, and it comes to you as a revelation of the man.

"Skelly Buys a Hotel"

Here is a Biograph comedy whose purpose is wholly to entertain. And it does. It is irresistibly funny.

The above subjects are shown for the second time. The program at the Lyric also includes Pathe Weekly No. 15, not shown before, and at the Majestic, "Broncho Billy's Bible."

INJURIES FROM FALL

FATAL TO JOHN HOLT

Resident of Janesville Since 1875

Died at Home on Prairie Avenue Tuesday Afternoon.

Shortly before five o'clock Tuesday afternoon, John Holt passed to the world beyond at his home on Prairie Avenue. Mr. Holt was born in Stockholm, Sweden, July 6th, 1846. He attended the schools of his native land and learned the tailor's trade. In 1867 he came to America and settled in Chicago, coming to Janesville in 1875, where he has since made his home. He was in the employ of J. I. Ford and Son for thirty years and was a faithful and industrious worker.

Mr. Holt was taken sick on last Thanksgiving day but had improved slowly so that he was able to return to work two weeks ago. While getting on a street car to go home some one he was thrown to the pavement and badly injured.

Effects of his fall were not realized at first, but he became much worse, and last Monday his left side was broken, cheek bone on the brain was the final cause of his death.

Mr. Holt's many friends have often spoken of his tireless energy, his great ambition, and his true manly qualities. He was a kind and loving father and husband and was a great lover of his home.

He was twice married, his first wife passing away a number of years ago. His second wife, Mrs. E. Holt, of Middleton, Wis., and Frank O. Holt of Edgerton; also two daughters, Mrs. H. Kellogg of Harvard, Nebraska, and Miss Cora M. Holt of this city.

Funeral services will be held from the home on Prairie Avenue at two o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Elizabeth Battle. of Ripon, and a former Janesville pioneer, passed away on Thursday from her home in Ripon. The remains will be taken to the cemetery at one o'clock and will be taken to Oak Hill cemetery where services and interment will be held.

Mrs. Battle left Janesville some twenty years ago, for Olivet, Michigan, where her daughter, Mrs. J. W. Bintliff was music director in Olivet College. Mrs. Bintliff is the widow of the late J. W. Bintliff, whose father General Bintliff, formerly editor of the Janesville Gazette. After a stay in Michigan for a time, Mrs. Battle moved to Ripon where her daughter had accepted a position as instructor of music at Ripon College, which position she holds today.

Mrs. Battle was a member of the Congregational church when a resident of this city, and made her home on the corner of South Jackson and Pleasant streets, on the site of Dr. Fember's new home.

Mrs. Alfred Shane.

Word has just been received from San Diego, California, to the effect that Mrs. Alfred Shane passed away February 26th at the home of her sister, Mrs. A. L. Morgan.

Mrs. Shane will be remembered by her old-time friends in Janesville as Miss Belle Turner. She was born in 1814 in the town of Hampton, her death came after an illness lasting for many months. Interment was made in the Greenwood cemetery March 2nd.

Mrs. Josephine Bogardus. of Prospect avenue, passed away at one o'clock Tuesday afternoon at her home. She was 82 years of age on the 19th of February. Funeral announcement and other particulars will be given later.

The flames spread to the ceiling and door to the living room. Mrs. Allison was extinguished by Mrs. Allison before serious damage was suffered. The department was not called.

SWAYS FROM THIN WIRE FORTY FEET FROM WALK TO REMOVE PHONE WIRE

Hundreds of pedestrians nervously watched Robert Wright, city foreman of the Wisconsin line crew, pull him across a thin message wire at the intersection of River and Milwaukee streets this afternoon to remove a telephone wire which was connected with the contractor's shanty on North River street.

The lineman pulled himself across the thin wire, which is about forty feet from the ground and lower than the other wires, with the aid of a small belt, two buckles being snapped, making a seat.

One day a teacher was having a first-grade class in physiology. She asked them if they knew that there was a burning fire in the body all of the time. One little girl spoke up and said: "Yes'm, when it is a cold day I can see the smoke."—National Monthly.

Store Notes From Rehberg's

Milwaukee Street Store Rapidly Assuming a Bright New Appearance—Ready for Opening.

The noise of hammer and saw with the swish of the decorator's brush is merry music here. It is the combined chorus of everything that helps in making the Milwaukee Street Store Greater. It will be a comparatively short time until we will be ready to announce the opening of our new Milwaukee street store.

Among other things that help in making the Milwaukee Street Store Greater, it will be a comparatively short time until we will be ready to announce the opening of our new Milwaukee street store.

When your neck is tired looking up for robins, bluebirds and grackles, rest it by looking for meadow larks, not forgetting to keep the ears wide open. Meadow larks walk-walk-walk, mind you, not hop—upon the ground, but the early singing, courting meadow lark likes a vantage point from which to charm some lady meadow lark with his rich, rolling whistle. A weed stalk, a fence post, the top of any-sized tree will suit a meadow lark, provided it is in or on the outskirts of some grassy field.

Over fields, bordering or near streams flies the killdeer. "Kill deer, kill deer," repeats the killdeer, as he flies. You will have to wait in the country to see this bird as he never comes to town. It is a beautiful bird, graceful upon the wing.

MISS CORA LUEDER WAS PLEASANTLY SURPRISED

Miss Cora Lueder was pleasantly surprised by the home of her sister, Mrs. Arthur Albrecht, 1002 South Washington street last evening, the occasion being her birthday. Games formed the entertainment, followed by a delicious luncheon. Among the guests present were: The Misses Cora and Alma Lueder, Lizzie Ballentine, Agnes Stetuke, Claude Ballentine, Ella Blumreich, Elsie Gerloff, Mr. and Mrs. August Nielsen and sons, Mr. and Mrs. William Ballentine, and the Messrs. Arthur Schowen, Emil Podewell, Otto Blumreich, Vernon Eldwell, Fred Lenke, Herman Ballentine and Mr. and Mrs. A. Albrecht.

TAX EXHIBIT IS POSTED IN TREASURER'S OFFICE

County Treasurer E. F. Livermore has posted in his office a bulletin which is labeled "1913 tax exhibit." Among other things it shows that Rock county pays into the state treasury this year more than $149,000 than last year, above what is returned to the county. The exhibit also carries the checks from six banks by which the county's returns to the state treasurer were made. It shows further that the county tax levy for 1913 is the same as for 1912, or $90,000.

Result, However, Is the Same. Occasionally a man finds himself in debt not because he is dishonest, but because he is a bad hand at mental arithmetic.

ROBINS ARRIVED NOW

WATCH FOR OTHER OF FEATHERED VISITORS

Walter Bull Sees Little Red Breasted Visitor on Tuesday Afternoon.

—Spring Is Coming.

Walter Bull, who resides at 630 South Jackson street, reports the first robin arrived in Janesville. He was sitting on a tree, on Riverside street, Tuesday afternoon at five o'clock and did not seem a bit lonely.

It is not too early to put last summer's bird house in shape for its future tenants. A few crumbs will show the early arrival he is welcome and you may expect a new occupant any time now. In fact some have returned during the January thaw, but that was during the winter months.

Bluebirds may be expected about the same time as robins, their vanguard usually arriving a few days ahead of the first robins. The reason for this is that bluebirds are not so much afraid of the city as the little songsters don't come into the city commonly. The early bluebirds are often found in little flocks of from three to twelve. If you are acquainted with their song, your first glimpse of them probably will be of a little flock of them flying so far overhead that you would never know them to be bluebirds if it were not for the lovely blue and white dropping down from above. Look for bluebirds on telegraph poles and wires, fence posts and lower branches of trees.

The latter is a much larger, noisier and more striking looking bird and much less blue than the real bluebird. The bluejay is a resident in and about Janesville all year long. For company during the winter months it has the hairy woodpecker, downy woodpecker, an occasional red-headed woodpecker, the white breasted nuthatch, chickadee, brown creeper, and in the country the crow, raven, sparrow, goldfinch and prairie horned lark. Juncos, little slate-colored birds from the arctic regions, winter just a very short way south of here. They are beginning to appear in small flocks and will stay with us until some time in May, for unlike most other birds, they migrate in a very leisurely manner having fun all the way their summer home in the far north.

Blackbird Due Any Time Now.

The red-winged blackbird and his two cousins, the rusty blackbird and the big noisy grackle are due any time now. If you want to see the early blackbird keep your ears open for blackbird notes overhead. A small flock will pass over you some day, calling as they fly. Or your first one may be a solitary bird, a lone tall tree along the creek or river bank.

When your neck is tired looking up for robins, bluebirds and grackles, rest it by looking for meadow larks, not forgetting to keep the ears wide open. Meadow larks walk-walk-walk, mind you, not hop—upon the ground, but the early singing, courting meadow lark likes a vantage point from which to charm some lady meadow lark with his rich, rolling whistle. A weed stalk, a fence post, the top of any-sized tree will suit a meadow lark, provided it is in or on the outskirts of some grassy field.

Over fields, bordering or near streams flies the killdeer. "Kill deer, kill deer," repeats the killdeer, as he flies. You will have to wait in the country to see this bird as he never comes to town. It is a beautiful bird, graceful upon the wing.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

BEAUTIFUL WRINKLES.

Of all the foibles of my sex, there is none more absurd than their unreasonable fear of the first wrinkles.

There are, to be sure, such things as ugly wrinkles, but there are also beautiful wrinkles. A woman of forty without a line on her face, is, to my mind, quite as unattractive and unnatural looking as a woman of twenty-five with a net-work of wrinkles.

Which is more beautiful? A blank piece of white paper or a piece of paper on which a poet has written a wonderful sermon?

Which is more beautiful? A formless block of marble, or the same block of marble when it has been chiseled into a marvelous statue by a great sculptor?

Would you have the passing of your life leave your face as blank as a piece of white paper, or as formless and meaningless as a rough block of marble? The lines which appear in the faces of men and women who have passed their first youth are carved there by character. If the character itself is ugly, they may be ugly. But, if the character is strong and beautiful they will be strong and beautiful, too. Of course, we are all afraid of ugly wrinkles. But that is no reason we should be afraid of the lines which express a character that is not ugly. And the way to avoid ugly wrinkles is not to try to fill them up with lotions or smooth them out with massage, but to avoid an ugly character.

It is very interesting to study the lines on people's faces. If you have never noticed them before, open your eyes tomorrow and look at them. There is a language of lines which anyone with interest in character study should learn to read.

The fine lines going down from the corners of the eyes are smile wrinkles. Similar lines slanting out from the inner corners of the eyes are lines of humor. The lines around the mouth are lines of worry or of a keen sense of humor. The lines around the mouth are lines of worry or of a keen sense of humor. The lines around the mouth are lines of worry or of a keen sense of humor.

The commonest, and usually the earliest wrinkles, are those coming horizontally on the forehead. They are the result of vivacity and much change of expression. Nervousness will also bring them sooner than they would otherwise appear. Horizontal wrinkles between the eyes are always welcome because they give the appearance of ill temper. They are sometimes the result of a bad disposition, but they can also be caused by nervousness or by long continued pain.

It space permitted I might tell you a good deal more of this language of wrinkles, as I read it. But since space does not permit, suppose you take up the book of human life which is always open to you and read for yourself.

Tooth Talks

Decay of the teeth is caused by the action of bacteria. It usually occurs upon those surfaces of the teeth which are not easily reached to clean, or which by reason of their roughness afford lodgment for food particles in which bacteria thrive.

This is the process of decay. Particles of food stick to the teeth in inaccessible places, bacteria thrive in these places and form acids which etch the hard outer tissue of the tooth, the enamel, and having penetrated it, proceed to destroy the dentine beneath. The tooth is destroyed toward the pulp (nerve), which is in the center of the tooth, and when this is reached by the decay and exposed to the air, the tooth begins to ache. Cold water coming in contact with the tooth causes pain, as do hot water and sweets. Sometimes the nerve dies painlessly, bacteria destroying it, working their way down the canal which contains the nerve to the end of the root, thence to the soft tissue around the root, generating pus and forming an abscess. The pain from an abscess is even greater than that from an exposed nerve. The tooth feels longer than its neighbors, is very sore to the touch, and the pain is intense, especially upon the application of hot drinks. The mischief is all due to atoms which can be discerned only with the microscope. It would seem, then, in this age of asepsis, when the mouth is flooded with germicides, that one might keep the mouth free from bacteria, but that is impossible. These trouble-bringers are taken into the mouth with food and with each breath. The mouth of man is the best incubator for bacteria in the world. But by the practice of proper cleanliness the danger of decay is lessened. Mothers should teach children cleanliness as soon as the first teeth are erupted, so that they shall become a habit to be followed through life. The necessity of impressing upon children the fact that neglect of the teeth is an offense against cleanliness and good taste cannot be overestimated. Premature loss of the baby teeth is almost certain to cause irregularities of the permanent teeth. The teeth of children and adults should be cleaned in the following manner: Large particles of food should be removed from the teeth with a quill toothpick or with what is known as dental floss. Wooden toothpicks may be broken off under the gums, and the gums may be wounded by dental toothpicks, so these forms should be discarded. The teeth should be cleaned after each meal. The object in cleaning the teeth before breakfast is to cleanse the mouth of food deposits that may have accumulated overnight arising from the stomach during sleep. And the object in cleaning the teeth before retiring is to brush off any particles of food that may not have been removed by previous cleaning.

Women Worth While

Mrs. James M. Gudger.

By Selene Armstrong Harmon.

Many congressional women go campaigning with their husbands these days, but few know a district as Mrs. James M. Gudger knows the Fifteenth district are wont to gather. She is as familiar with the names of its postoffices as she is with the alphabet. She has heard politics talked at every cross roads, school house and country church at which interested citizens are wont to gather for the expression of political opinion. And she knows the majority of the women and the babies as well as she knows the voters and the post-offices.

All of which makes her a power with the people who have sent her husband to the lower house of congress for the past ten years. In her husband's district she has a reputation for the greatest political sagacity and for being an astute judge of men and measures. More than that, it is often said of her that her personal popularity has more than once been a powerful factor in her husband's election to congress from a district in which Republican opposition is exceedingly strong.

Campaigning with Mr. and Mrs. Gudger does not mean dashing from town to town in an automobile by schedule time. It means driving behind a fine span of horses along the beautiful roadways for which Asheville and its environs are noted, and the continual meeting with old friends along the way. They have sometimes been out as long as three weeks on these trips.

When in Asheville, Mrs. Gudger takes an active part in the musical activities of the community. She herself possesses a mezzo soprano voice that gives great pleasure to her friends. She is a member of the woman's club of Asheville, and is actively interested in the Y. W. C. A. organization of that city. In Washington, Mrs. Gudger belongs to the Congressional club. She also finds time to keep up her D. A. R. interests. She is an ardent follower of the D. A. R. president general Mrs. William Cumming Story, and is on the continental hall committee and the international peace and arbitration committee of the national organization of that city. At the annual convention of the Daughters held in Washington each spring, Mrs. Gudger usually represents her home chapter.

Mrs. Gudger laughingly confesses to great interest and skill in palmistry. Whether or not this has anything to do with her reputation as an astute judge of people it would be hard to say. It is certain, however, that when she looks at you searchingly, takes your hand, palm upward, in hers and tells you the story of your life, you have the same sort of thrill for which, when all the world was young, you cheerfully paid the fortune teller anywhere from fifty cents to a dollar, and a half.

Heart and Home Problems

BY MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) If the parents are in trouble and the mother most for the home and the father uses bad language and scolds without a reason, what can we do to make the father different?

(2) Please give me a few good candy recipes.

(3) What is good for eczema?

(4) Are black muslin dresses going to be worn this spring?

S. S. M. (1) Stand by your mother and help her all you can. Try to be patient with the father. See if you can suggest such a good excuse for him.

(2) You can make a number of different candies out of one recipe. Mix the white of an egg with enough confectioner's sugar to make a stiff paste. Divide it into different parts. Flavor each part differently or add different colors. Roll some into little balls and stick a nut in each. Roll some in cocoanut. Dip some in melted sweet chocolate. Mix with any chopped candied or dried fruit, make into a roll and slice in thin round pieces.

(3) See a doctor about this.

(4) One can always wear black muslin, but it is not a particularly fashionable fabric.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Can a man be mayor of a city if he is not a resident of that city?

(2) Is it right to light a cigar in the presence of ladies?

(3) When is it about time to go home from a public dance?

(4) Also, from a private one?

(5) Is it right for a young lady to "refuse" if a gentleman asks her for a dance if she is not engaged?

J. C. JR. (1) No.

(2) A man should always first ask permission of the ladies. Best of all, he should control his appetite for cigars until he is out of their company, as the smoke makes some people ill.

(3) Minors should be home at 10 p. m. at the latest; elders may stay until 11. A private dance is governed by the time it begins—an early dance closing early and late one lasting sometimes until early morning hours. It's not good for one's health or work, however, to stay more than three hours at any evening party.

(5) She has the privilege.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Do you think a cap cut round and gathered in by a rubber band, made of white net over yellow silk, would be all right to wear to dances?

Can you suggest anything else that would be pretty?

My friend has red hair. Do you ample and make home so pleasant that he can't help but act differently.

Famous For Her Hair

Actress Tells How She Grew It

Madame Rose, the well-known actress who played on one of the leading vaudeville circuits the past winter and who is especially noted for her long, beautiful hair, in a recent interview in "Chicago," made the following statement: "Any lady or gentleman can promote the growth of their hair and make it soft and glossy with this simple recipe which they can mix at home. To a half pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Apply to the scalp two or three times a week with the finger tips. This is not only the finest hair grower I have ever known, but it prevents the hair from falling out, removes dandruff and scalp humors, darkens streaked, faded gray hair and makes it soft and glossy. The ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost."

Household Hint

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

When cleaning with gasoline, rub first with French chalk to prevent the gasoline from leaving a ring. When dry the chalk can be easily brushed off.

Very sour fruit can be partly sweetened by a pinch of salt while cooking.

If starched clothes get wet with the rain on the line do not take them down, but allow them to remain until dry, and then they will retain their original stiffness.

Flower vases often overbalance when in use, for the flowers put into them are apt to make them top-heavy. This defect is easily remedied by putting bits of lead, shot or pebbles in the bottom of the vase.

THE TABLE.

Fruit Cream—Peel four bananas, wash and rub through a sieve; add the pulp and the juice of two oranges, one tablespoonful of lemon juice, one tablespoonful of sherry wine, two-thirds cup of powdered sugar and one and one-fourth tablespoonful of granulated gelatin dissolved in one-fourth cup of boiling water. Cool in ice water stirring constantly, and fold in the whip from two cups of cream.

Fried Brains—Blanch the brains by boiling them in salted water for ten minutes. Then put in cold water and leave until firm, then wipe dry. Slice into pieces of uniform size; pepper and salt, roll in beaten eggs, then in fine crumbs. Do this over night. In the morning roll again in eggs and cracker dust; leave on the ice for half an hour and fry quickly in hot fat. Drain and serve hot. Serve thin slices of crisp toast with them.

Sponge Cake—Beat the yolks and whites of five eggs separately; add the yolks stir a cupful of sugar and a small teaspoonful of flour that has been well sifted with a small teaspoonful of baking powder. Beat long and hard—if you do it for twenty minutes it will not be too long. Add a teaspoonful each of lemon and orange juice and fold in lightly the whites well beaten. Bake at once in a loaf tin in a ready oven. It should be done in three-quarters of an hour.

Scalloped Tomatoes and Eggs—Into a pint of stewed tomatoes stir a generous cupful of fine bread crumbs, a tablespoonful of melted butter, a half teaspoonful of sugar, pepper and salt to taste. Mix thoroughly and turn into a greased pudding dish. Upon the top of this scallop break as many eggs as will lie upon it side by side. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and bits of butter and bake until the eggs are set.

Mint Sandwiches—Pulverize one tablespoonful of mint leaves, pour over them two tablespoonfuls of boiling water. Let it stand for about a half hour. Soak half an ounce of gelatin in one tablespoonful of water. Dissolve it over hot water. Strain the mint into the gelatin and when cool add a pint of rich whipped cream and a pinch of salt. Let this stand in a mold until perfectly cold and firm. Slice in thin slices and put between dainty slices of bread.

Suet Dumplings—Rub a cupful of white suet free from strings and powder it fine. Rub and chop into two cupfuls of fine crumbs. Stir a teaspoonful of baking powder three times with four tablespoonfuls of flour and work into the crumbs and suet. Add a teaspoonful of salt. Beat three eggs very light and stir into a cupful and a half of milk. With this wet the crumbs and flour into a rather stiff dough. Make into dumplings with floured hands; tie up in cheesecloth dipped in hot water and flour, and drop in the side, leaving plenty of room to swell and boil for one hour. Eat with a liquid sauce.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS.

Sour cream added to a boiled dressing will add richness and is just as good as sweet cream, and it will whip as well.

A delicious jelly may be made of any chopped left-over meat mixed with gelatin. Serve on lettuce with a salad dressing.

Salads may be made of any chopped left-over meats, such as veal, lamb or fowl, and adding to any cold cooked vegetable left from a previous meal.

A few tablespoonfuls of canned corn and tomato may be mixed together with a cupful of bread crumbs; makes a nice dish and you will have the satisfaction of having saved something.

When a few lima beans are left, mash them, thicken a little milk with flour and butter, add the bean puree, a bit of onion juice, and serve a nice cream soup.

Dry cake crumbs make excellent puddings when baked with a custard poured over them.

To clean a piano case: Take a perfectly clean piece of cotton flannel, wring it out in hot water as dry as possible and drop on it a few drops of olive oil. Rub a small section of the case with the damp flannel, and immediately rub dry with a dry flannel. Then polish with a piece of camellia skin. Rub with the grain of the wood, and do not stop at a dozen rubs. "If the oil is not all rubbed off, breathe on the wood and rub again until it shines.

To clean piano keys, dampen a piece of flannel with alcohol and wipe them carefully, drying well. Do not touch the wood with the alcohol.

When there are two or three kinds of canned sauce left, and not enough to serve, mix them; put them through a sieve, add water, thickening, butter and serve with a cottage pudding.

Silk stockings, if carefully run at the heel and toe before wearing and then washed out in cold water each time, will wear very much longer than if not so treated.

The Changing Age

Girls and boys from 14 to 19 years of age undergo physical changes which tax their strength to the utmost and the strain is always apparent from pale cheeks, colorless lips, and tired bodies—sometimes eruptions of the skin and the utter lack of the ambition and animation with which their younger years were filled.

Budding into womanhood and manhood, with the duties of school or business, demands concentrated nourishment which is readily convertible into red blood corpuscles, energy and strength, and the very best thing for this changing age is the medical nutrient in Scott's Emulsion—it possesses the rare blood-making properties of cod liver oil in a predigested form; hypophosphites for the nervous system; with the healing, soothing qualities of pure glycerine.

Its nourishing force promotes assimilation, yields direct returns in abundant, red blood, fills hollow cheeks, tones the nerves, makes all good food do good, and does it in a natural easy manner. The sustaining nourishment in Scott's Emulsion is so helpful to this changing age that it should never be neglected—every druggist has it.

PSYCHOLOGY OFFERS INTERSECTING PHASES

SPEAKERS AT SCIENCE NIGHT OF TWILIGHT CLUB TELL OF ITS WIDE INFLUENCE.

APPLIED TO BUSINESS

J. T. Shearer Talks On Its Importance in Advertising—Hooper and Lowth Give Fine Addresses.

That the new science of psychology has a wide influence extending to business, social problems, and education, was emphasized by speakers at the science night meeting of the Y. M. C. A. auditorium last evening.

After Superintendent J. T. Hooper of the state school for the blind had explained the idea and scope of the science of psychology as it is now being worked out in contrast to the old ideas, Principal F. J. Lowth of the county training school gave an interesting and able paper dealing with suggestion, one phase of the science, and the theory of civilization.

The school faculty gave a few important facts of psychology as applied to business and especially to advertising. Mr. Hooper pointed out that the early school of psychology, which dated back to the time of Plato and the oriental philosophers dealt with the mind by observing it within oneself. Upon this study they built an abstract science largely theoretical and largely unconnected with the physical sciences. Not until the last half of the last century did there come a change in the science of psychology. With the advent and acceptance of the theory of evolution came the change in the method, and now psychologists not only study their own mind but they go outside themselves, studying the child's mind, the mind of savages and people not far advanced in the scale of civilization, the minds of abnormal persons of all sorts, and with a liberal use of the laboratory much has been accomplished.

"Child psychology," said Hooper, "we have been able to learn just what are the processes of the child's mind at different stages of development, and we know just what the mind of the average child ought to comprehend and what it ought to accomplish. When children do not attain to this standard we look to find the cause, oftentimes some physical defect, and we try to remove it. In this way psychology contributes largely to education."

Another phase of psychology which has been developed is the adolescent stage in the life of the boy and girl. But this new science doesn't stop here, according to Hooper, for by study of the abnormal psychology has been of immense importance in the handling of the criminal classes and the social dependents as a result of this study much emphasis on the matter of environment has been evolved. "We recognize now," said Mr. Hooper, "that the difference between the boy who goes to the reform school and the one who does not is that the one has an environment which helped him in overcoming natural tendencies."

Principal Lowth read a scholarly paper on "Suggestion in its Relation to Therapeutics." After explaining carefully what suggestion is, its relation to the subconscious mind, Mr. Lowth made plain the effect which such a mental state may have on the body for harm as well as for good.

He pointed out that the suggestion was all the greater because of the intimate connection between the nerve and mental activity. Every sensation flowing along the nerve cells to the brain, every emotion, has its corresponding effect upon the body, and as a result it is easy to see, and Mr. Lowth cited numerous instances to show that such emotions as fear, anger, vengeance have their deleterious effects on the body, while such attitudes of mind as are embodied in faith, trust, loving kindness, their soothing effects on the physical make-up, keeping one's body in tune and aiding in the repulsion of disease.

Doctors are coming to realize the value of suggestion and of mental attitudes in their profession and using less drugs and more of psychology in the treatment of their patients, said Lowth. At the same time it is impossible to think that suggestion can cure germ diseases, but the fear of germs may induce disease. Mr. Lowth quoted illustrations from the works of Prof. Munsterberg of Harvard and Bishop Fallows of Chicago, and his paper contained much food for thought.

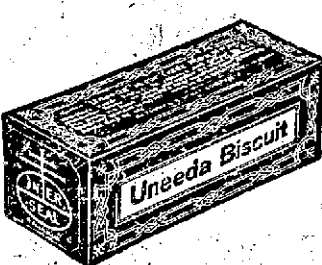

Mr. Shearer announced that the subject of the psychology of business has to do with psycho-economic-therapeutics, which, he said, was the only technical term which he intended to use in the course of his talk. Every successful business man practices psychology whether he knows it or not, declared Mr. Shearer. He possesses as intimate understanding of the mind and of human nature which enables him to secure results in the business world.

In addition to the psychology involved in handling men the business man is also concerned with the psychology of his product. In this connection Mr. Shearer took up some of the important features and problems of advertising, discussing them in an interesting and comprehensive manner.

The first requisite for a good advertisement, said Shearer, is that it must catch and hold attention. He mentioned some of the many ways in which this is done, dwelling especially on the appeal to the senses through the means of color, face type, general style and make-up, ease of comprehension and other elements. The element of repetition in advertising was also treated some length by the speaker. Some advertisers use some certain feature, using it continually and in every advertisement they publish; others go to the opposite degree, changing completely the

The artist is gaining a stronger hold on the advertising field, said the speaker, for the reason that he makes the most successful appeal to the emotions, more successful than the philosopher.

In closing Mr. Shearer asked a number of questions which contained some of the problems of advertisers and which served to sum up facts upon which he had placed emphasis.

Superintendent H. C. Euell was leader of the meeting, last night which was well attended. The next meeting of the club, on April 21, will be ladies' night, the last gathering of the season.

Albany, Wisc., March 10.—The fourteenth annual gold medal declamation contest took place at the opera house, last Friday evening, March 6, and proved to be the best in the history of the school. There were eight contestants who participated. Each appeared in a contest and creditable manner and displayed the well and careful training which they received. The competition between the contestants was very close, and all awaited anxiously at the close of the program to hear the decision of the judges. Superintendent Lowth presented the gold medal to Miss Grace Edwards, who won first place with her spirited selection, "Daddy, Go."

Second place was given to Miss Norma Multer, with "The Story of Patsy." Third place was rendered Miss Bessie Gebel, with "How the La Rue Stakes Were Lost." Much credit is due to the instruction of Miss Josephine Fitzgerald of Janesville, whose excellent training brought forth a high degree of efficiency among the contestants. The hall was filled with an enthusiastic audience, which proved that the citizens are interested in the welfare of our school. The judges were Superintendent F. L. Lowth, Janesville; Professor Chas. Gahr, Brodhead, and Miss Nellie Hall, Brodhead.

Some idea of the value of Clinton as a market and the stability, thrift and industry of our farmers can be had when it is made known that three sales of sheep from Clinton each amounted to over $10,000 and one ran over $15,000 and over $100,000 worth of cattle, hogs and sheep have gone out of Clinton in the past couple of months.

My cough is almost entirely gone and I am strong and well again, and I am glad to recommend Vinol to others who suffer as I did."

It in this way, then: Was he in love with you?"

"You are still unfair. I shall not answer."

He was silent for a long time. "And Sara's lips are sealed," he mused, still possessed of doubts and fears.

"Until she elects to tell the story, dearest love, my lips are also sealed. I love you better than anything else in all this world. I could willingly offer up my life for you, but—well, my life does not belong to me. It is Sara's."

"For heaven's sake, Hetty, what is all this?" he cried in desperation.

"I can say no more. It is useless to insist, Brandon. If you can wrest the story from her, all well and good. You will hate me then, dear love. But it cannot be helped. I am prepared."

"Tell me this much. When you refused to marry Leslie, was your course inspired by what had happened in—connection with Charlie Wrangell?"

"You forget that it is you that I love," she responded simply.

"But why should Sara urge you to marry Leslie if there is anything—"

"Hush! There is the waiter. Come to my sitting-room after breakfast. I have something to say to you. We must come to a definite understanding. This cannot go on."

He was with her for an hour in that pinched little sitting-room, and left her there without a vestige of rancor in his soul. She would not give an inch in the stand she had taken, but something immeasurably great in his make-up rose to the occasion and he went forth with the conviction that he had no right to demand more of her than she was ready to give. He was satisfied to abide by her decision. The spell of her was over him more completely than ever before.

Two days later he saw her off at the Gare de Lyons, bound for Interlaken. There was a complete understanding between them. She wanted to be quite alone in the Alpine town; he was not to follow her there. She had reserved rooms at the Schweizerhof, and the windows of her sitting-room looked straight up the valley to the snow-covered crest of the Jungfrau. She remembered these rooms; as a young girl she had occupied them with her father and mother. By some hook or crook, Booth arranged by wire for her to have them again, not an easy matter at that season of the year. Later she was to go to Lucerne, and then to Venice.

The slightest shred of hope was left for Booth. Even though he might accomplish the task he had set unto himself—the conquest of Sara in respect to the untold story—he still had Hetty's dismal prophecy that after he learned the truth he would come to see why they could not be married. But he would not despair.

"We'll see" was all that he said in response to her forlorn cry that they were parting for ever. There was a grimace in the way he said it that gave her something to cherish during the months to come; the hope that he would come back and take her in spite of herself.

He sailed from Cherbourg on the first steamship calling there. Awake, he thought of her; asleep, he dreamed of Chellis Wrangell. There was something uncanny in the persistence with which that ruthless despoiler of peace forced his way into his dreams, to the absolute exclusion of all else. The voyage home was made horrid by these nightly reminders of a man he scarcely knew, yet dreaded. He became more or less obsessed by the idea that an evil spell had descended upon him in the shape of a ghostly influence.

The weeks passed slowly for Hetty. There were no letters from Sara, but an occasional line or so from Mr. Carroll. She had made Brandon Booth promise that he would not write to her, nor was he to expect anything from her. If her intention was to cut herself off entirely from her recent world and its people, as she might have done in another way by pursuing the time-honored and rather cowardly plan of entering a convent, she was soon to discover that success in the undertaking brought a deeper sense of exile than she could have imagined herself able to endure at the outset.

She found herself more utterly alone and friendless than at any time in her life. The chance companions she formed at Interlaken—despite a well-meant reserve—served only to increase her feeling of loneliness and despair. The very natural attentions of men, young and old, depressed her, instead of encouraging that essentially feminine thing called vanity. She lived as one without an aim, without a single purpose except to close one day that she might begin the next.

After a time, she went on to Lucerne. Here the life on the surface was gay, and she was roused from her state of lethargy in spite of her self. Once, from her little balcony in the National, she saw two of her old acquaintances in the chorus at the Gaiety. They were wearing many pearls. Another time, she met them in the street. She was rather quietly dressed. They did not notice her. But the prosperous Hebridean gentlemen who attended them were not so careless.

One day a card was brought to her rooms. For the next two weeks she had a true and unavoidable friend in Lucerne. It would appear that Mrs. Rowe-Martin had not been apprised of the rift in the Wrangell lute. She had no reason to consider the exclusive Miss Castleton as anything but the most desirable of companions. Mrs. Rowe-Martin was not long in finding out (though how she did it, heaven knows), that Lord Murgatroyd's grandniece was no longer the intimate of that impossible person, Sara Gooch. She couldn't think of Sara without thinking of Gooch.

But at last Mrs. Rowe-Martin departed, much to Hetty's secret relief, but not before she had increased the girl's burthens by introducing her into a cold-nosed cosmopolitan set from which there were but three ways of escape. She refused to marry one of them, denied another the privilege of making love to her, and declined to play auction bridge with all of them. They were not long in dropping her, although it must be said there was real regret among the men.

From Mrs. Rowe-Martin and others she heard that Mrs. Redmond Wrangell and Vivian were to be in Scotland in October, for somebody-or-other's christening, and that Leslie had been doing some really wonderful flying at Pau.

"I am so glad, my dear," said Mrs. Rowe-Martin, "that you refused to marry Leslie. He is a cad. Besides, you would have been in a perpetual state of nerves over his flying."

Of Sara, there was no news, as might have been expected. Mrs. Rowe-Martin made it very clear that Sara was a respectable person—but heavens!

The chill days of autumn came and the crowd began to dwindle. Hetty made preparations to join in the exodus. As the days grew short and bleak, she found herself thinking more and more of the happy-hearted, symbolic dicky-bird on a faraway window ledge. His life was neither a travesty nor a tragedy; hers was both of these.

Something told her too that Brandon Booth had wormed the truth out of Sara, and that she would never see him again. It hurt her to think that while Sara believed in her, the man who loved her did not. It is a way men have.

CHAPTER XVI.

Vivian Airs Her Opinions.

Chief among Booth's virtues was his undeviating loyalty to a set purpose. He went back to America with the firm intention to clear up the mystery surrounding Hetty Castleton, no matter how irksome the delay in achieving his aim or how vigorous the methods he would have to employ. Sara Wrangell, to all purposes, held the key; his object in life now was to induce her to turn it in the lock and throw open the door so that he might enter in and become a sharer in the secrets beyond.

A certain amount of optimistic courage attended him in his campaign against what had been described to him as the impossible. He could see no clear reason why she should withhold the secret under the new conditions, when so much in the shape of happiness was at stake. It was in this spirit of confidence that he prepared to confront her on his arrival in New York, and it was the same unbounded faith in the belief that nothing evil could result from a perfectly just and honorable motive that gave him the needed courage.

He stayed over night in New York, and the next morning saw him on his way to Southlook. There was something truly ingenious in his desire to get to the bottom of the matter without fear or apprehension. At the very worst, he maintained, there could be nothing more reprehensible than a passing infatuation, long since dispelled, or perhaps a mildly sinister episode in which virtue had been triumphant and vice defeated with unpleasant results to at least one person, and that person the husband of Sara Wrangell.

Pat met him at the station and drove him to the little cottage on the upper road.

"Ye didn't stay long," said he reflectively, after he had put the bag up in front. He took up the reins.

"Not very," replied his master.

After a dozen ruds or more, Pat tried again.

"Just seventeen days, I make it."

"Seems longer."

"Perhaps you'll be after going back soon."
